The book tells the story of the residents of a small, working-class neighborhood in North Philadelphia who are fighting to take back their streets from drug dealers and gangs. Led by a group of courageous mothers, the residents organize a community watch program and begin to patrol their own streets.

The book follows the residents as they face threats, intimidation, and violence from the criminals they are trying to stop. But they refuse to give up, and their determination eventually begins to make a difference. The drug dealers and gangs are driven out of the neighborhood, and the residents begin to rebuild their lives.
