Chapter 1: Identifying When You Are in an Inferior Position

The first step to defending against a superior opponent is to be able to identify when you are in an inferior position. There are a number of factors that can indicate that you are in an inferior position, including:

- You have fewer pieces than your opponent
- Your pieces are not as well-developed as your opponent's pieces
- Your king is in danger
- You are being attacked on multiple fronts
- You have no good moves

If you find yourself in any of these situations, then you need to be prepared to defend. The good news is that there are a number of defensive chess patterns that you can use to improve your chances of survival.
