This book presents the ephemeris of Dejanira, Heracles, and Nessus, three important figures in Greek mythology, for the period 1900-2050. The ephemeris provides the positions of these three planets in the zodiac at noon every day, as well as their aspects to each other and to the other planets in the solar system.

Dejanira was the wife of Heracles, and Nessus was a centaur who tried to abduct her. Heracles killed Nessus with a poisoned arrow, and the centaur's dying blood gave Heracles a fatal wound. The story of Dejanira, Heracles, and Nessus is a classic tale of love, betrayal, and revenge.

The ephemeris of Dejanira, Heracles, and Nessus can be used to gain insights into the astrological influences that were at work during the events of their lives. The positions of these planets in the zodiac can reveal their strengths and weaknesses, as well as the challenges and opportunities that they faced.

The aspects between Dejanira, Heracles, and Nessus can also provide insights into the relationships between these three characters. The aspects can show how their planets interact with each other, and how these interactions affect their behavior and motivations.

The ephemeris of Dejanira, Heracles, and Nessus is a valuable resource for anyone who is interested in Greek mythology, astrology, or the lives of these three fascinating characters.
